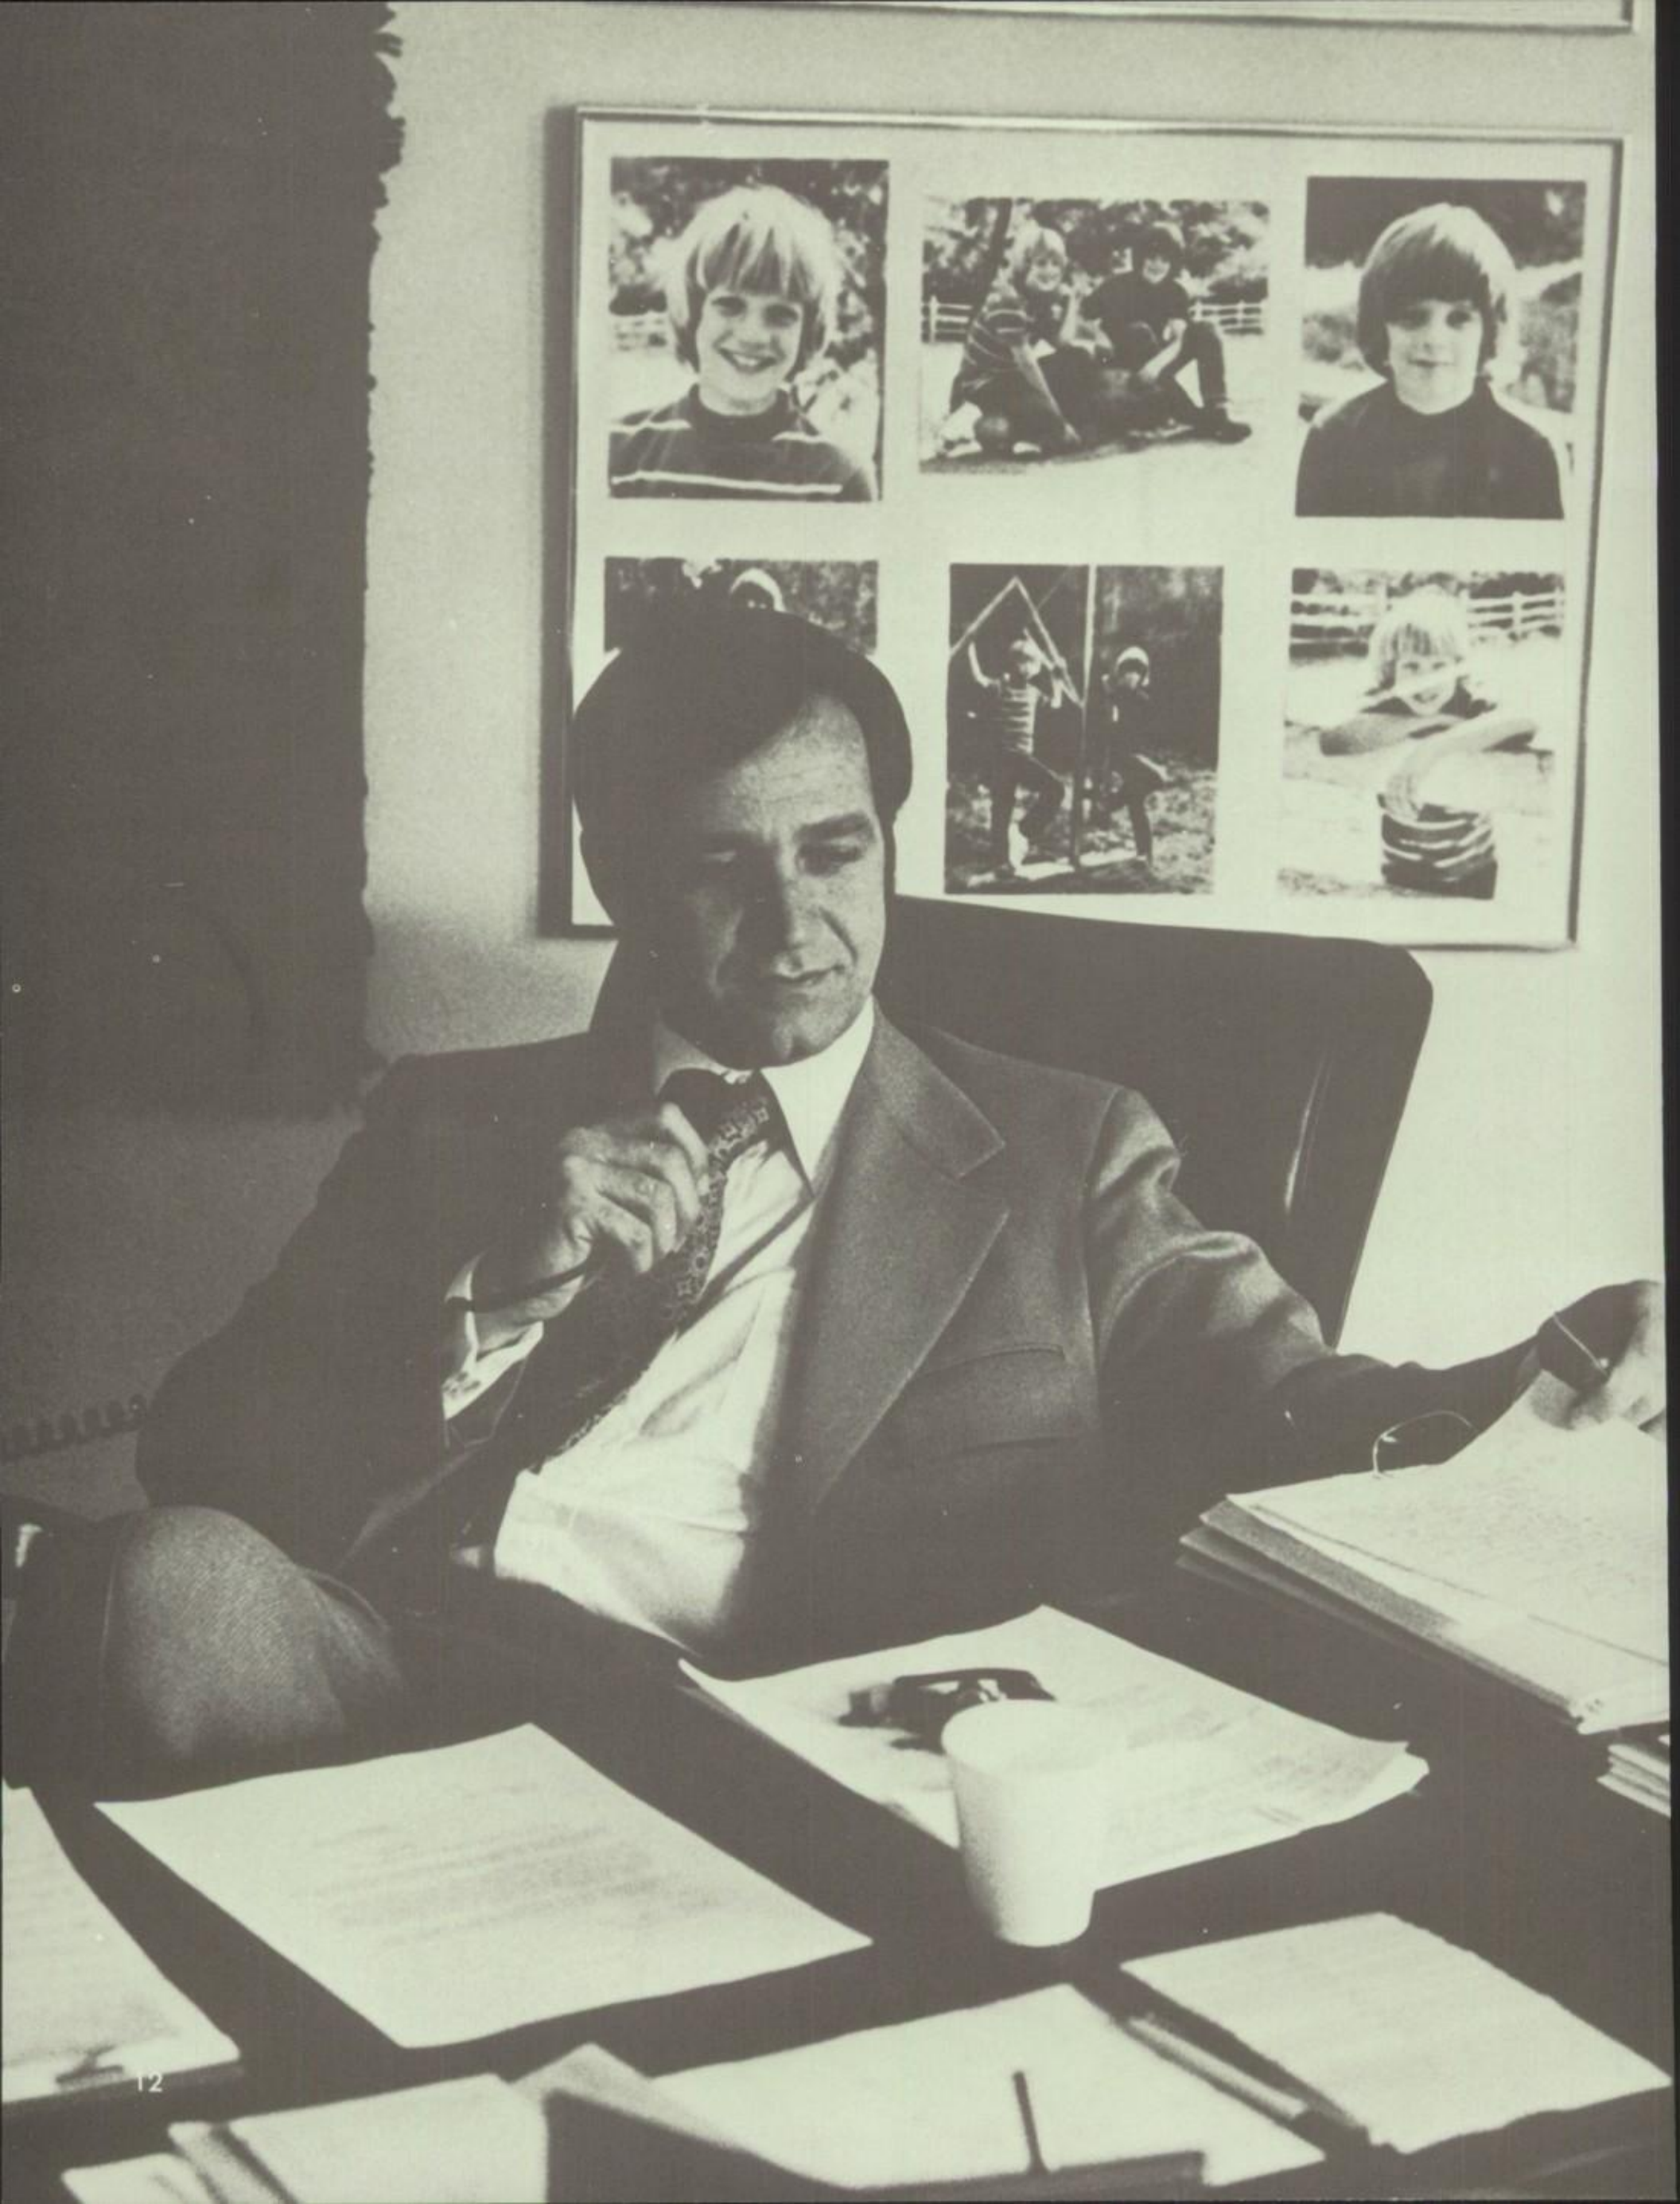
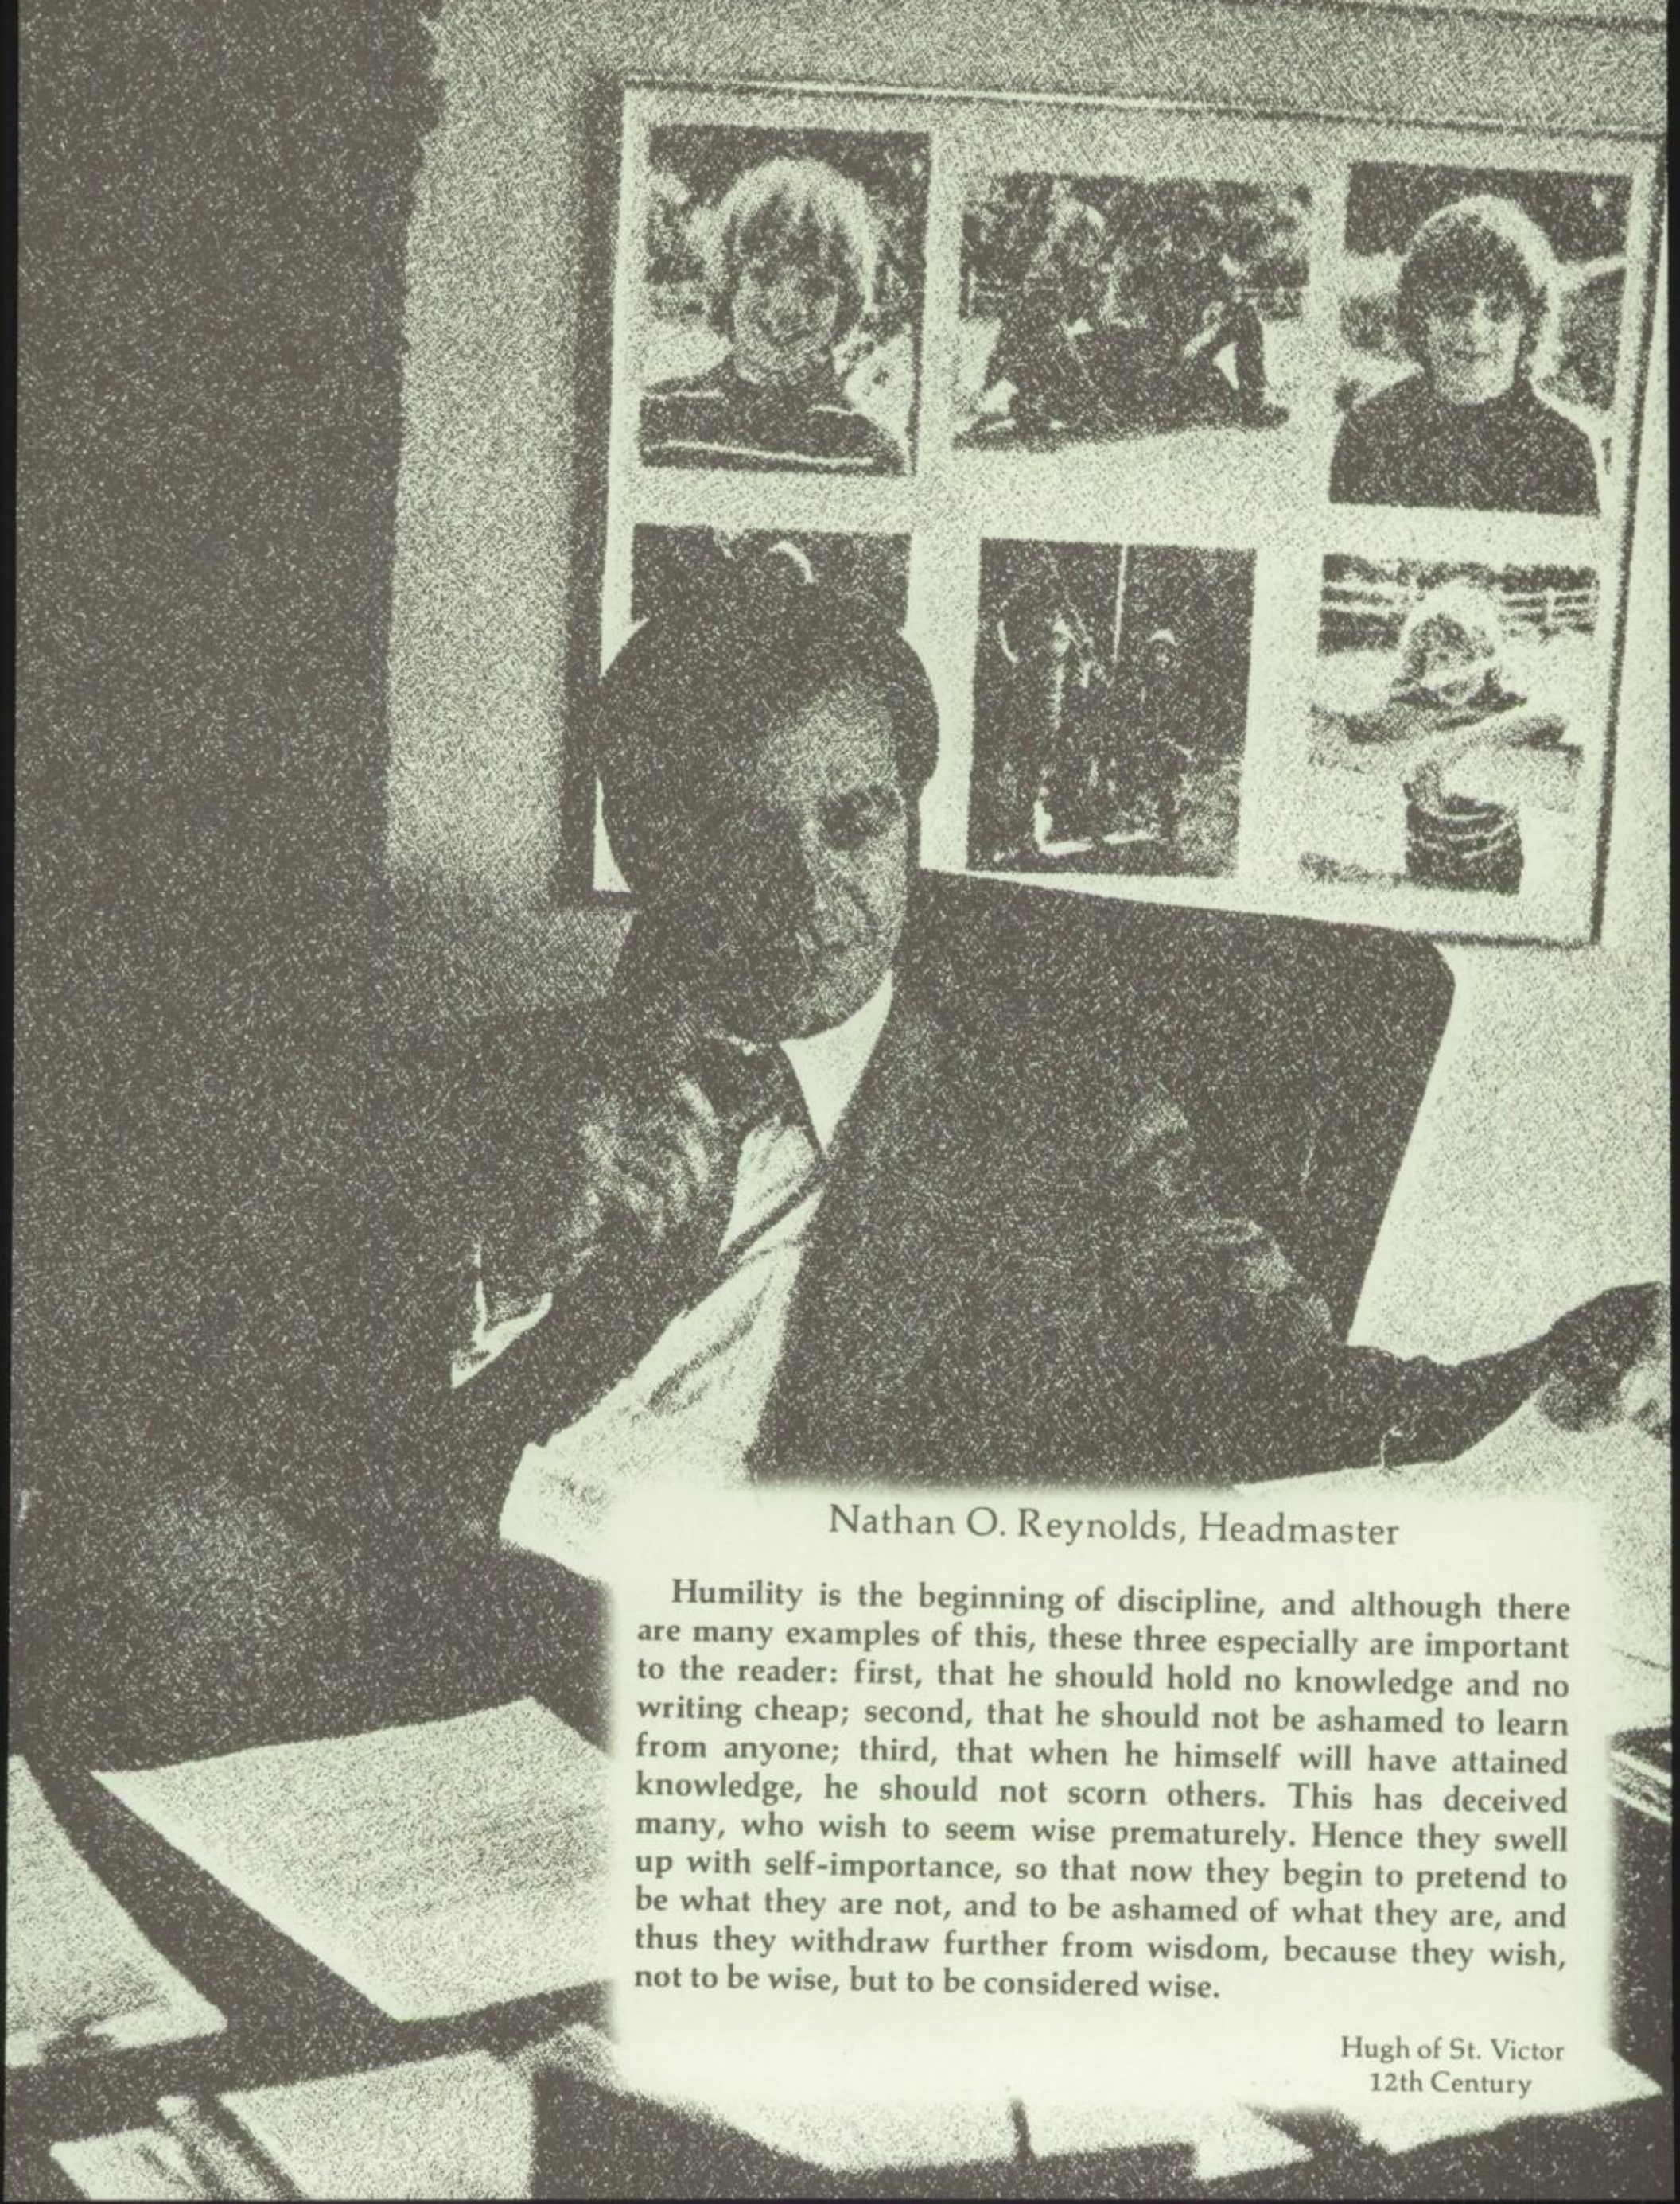
ADMINISTRATION

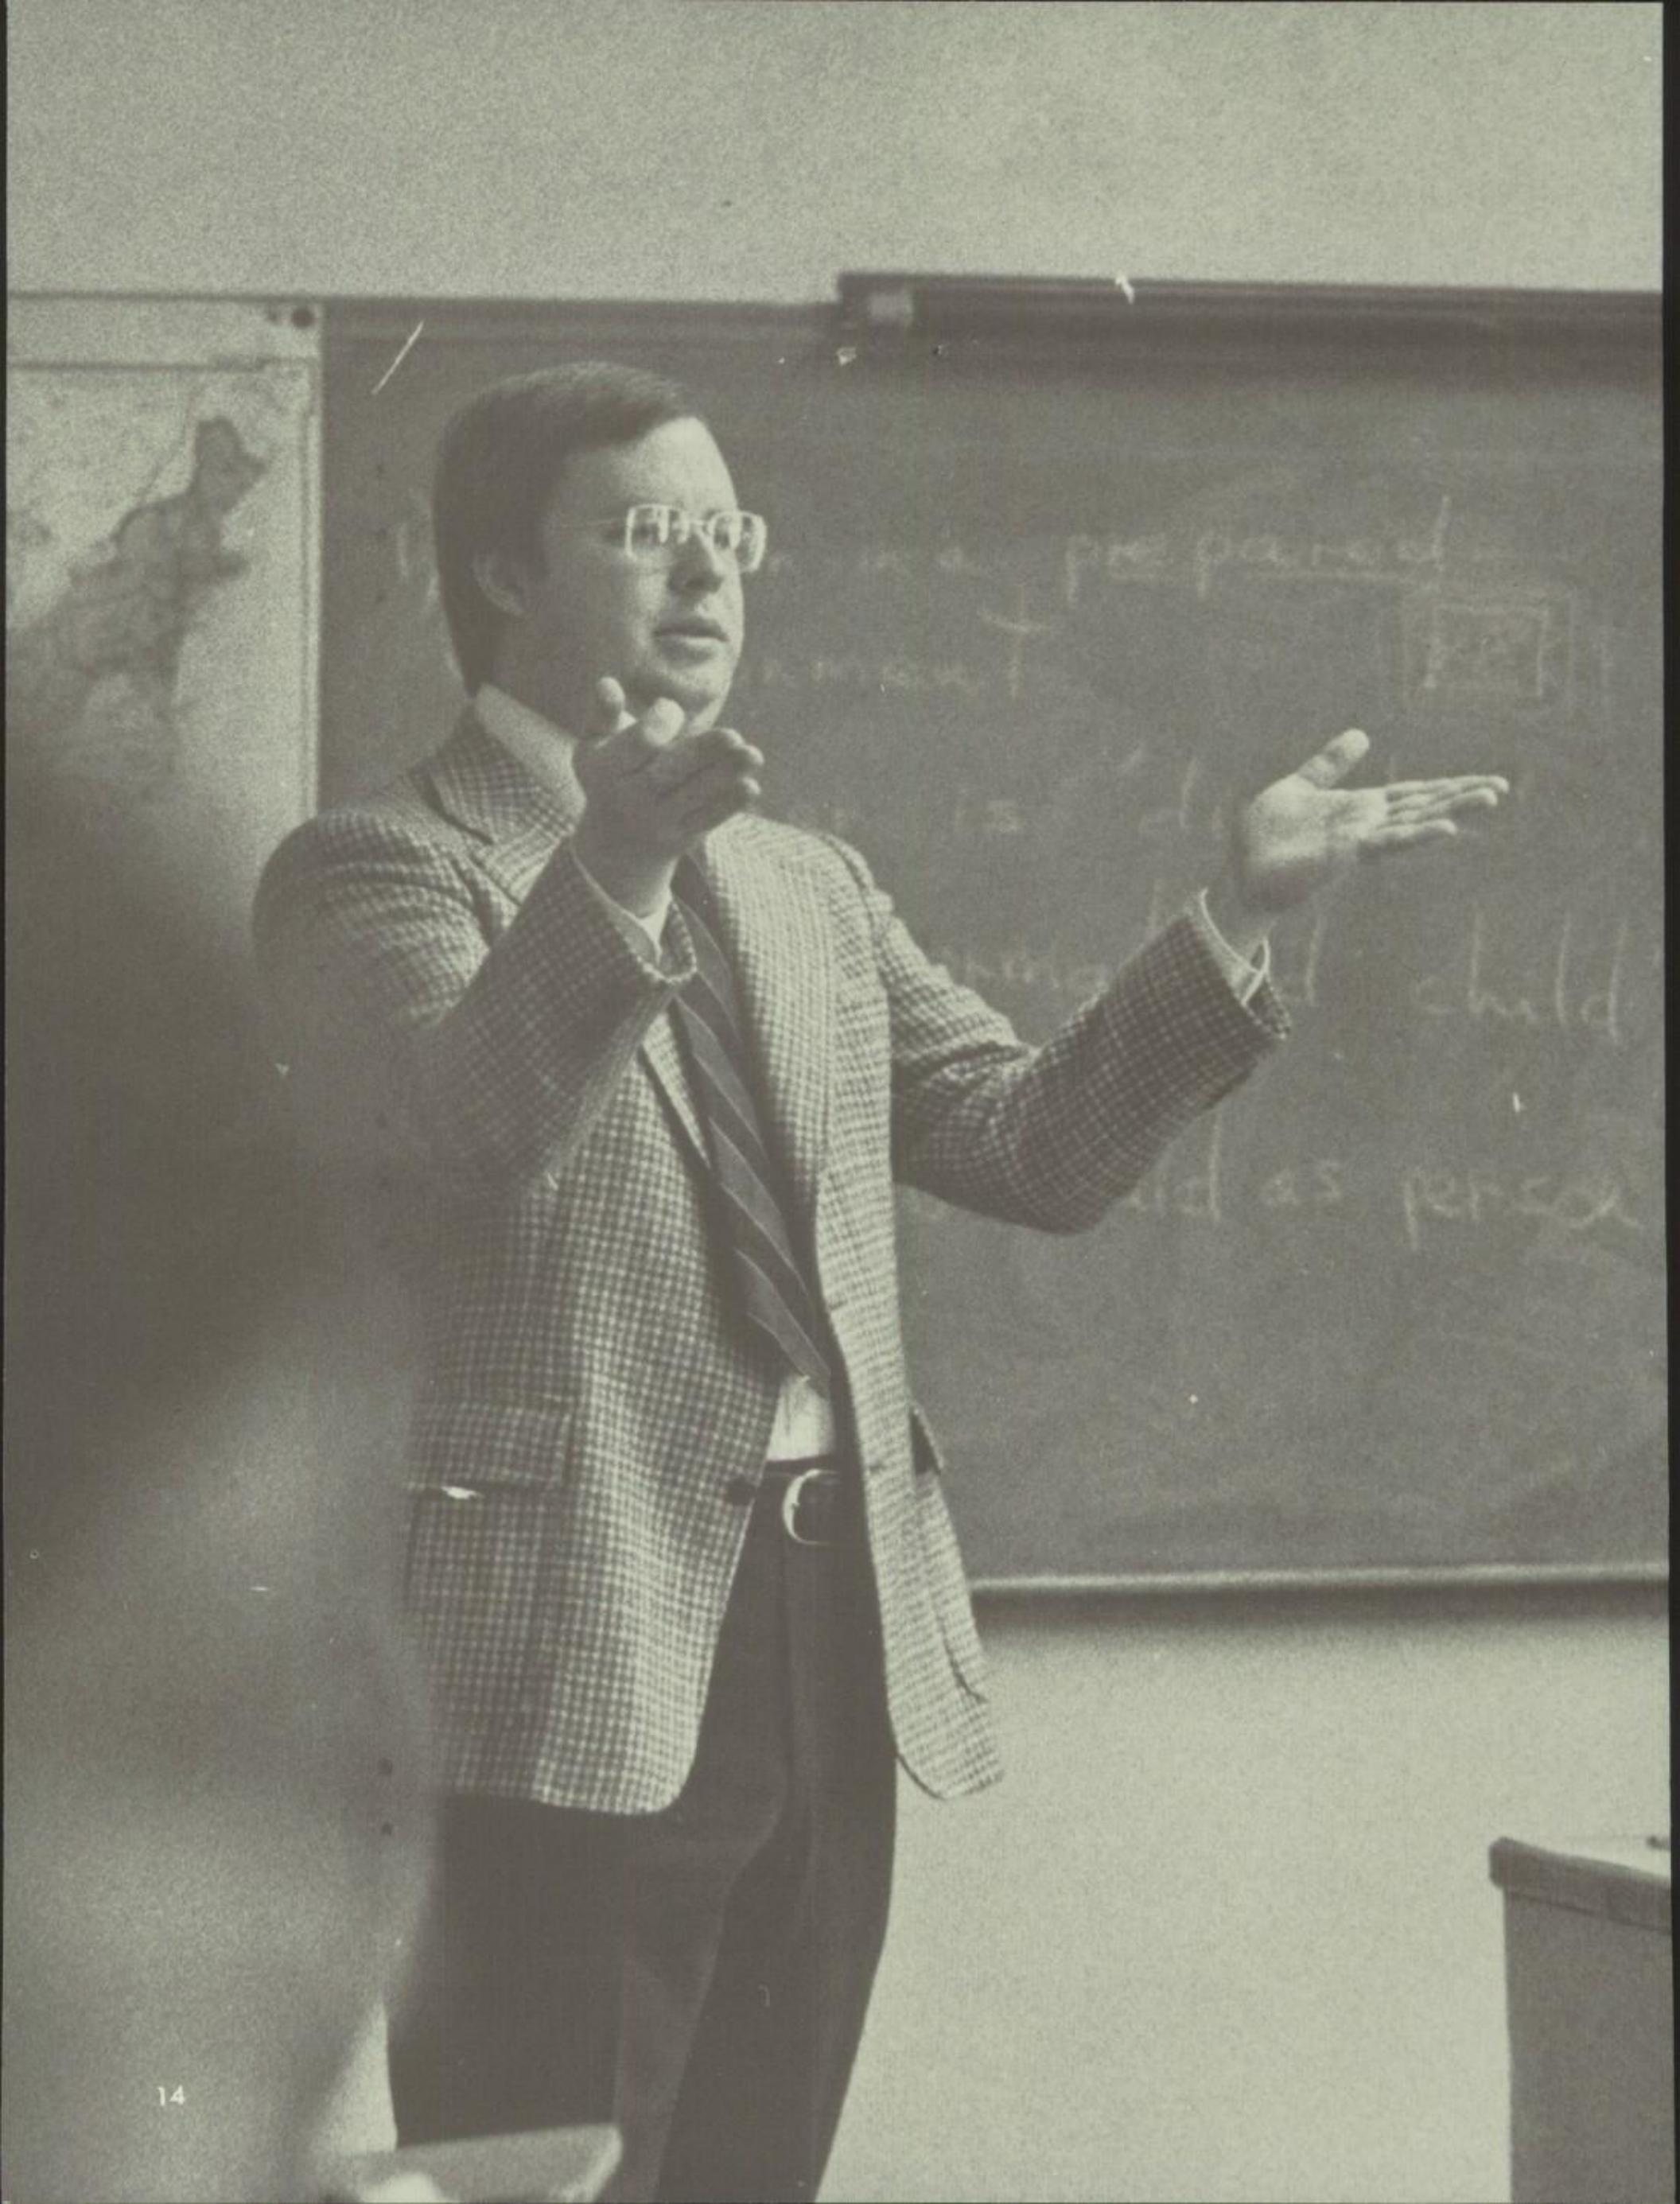


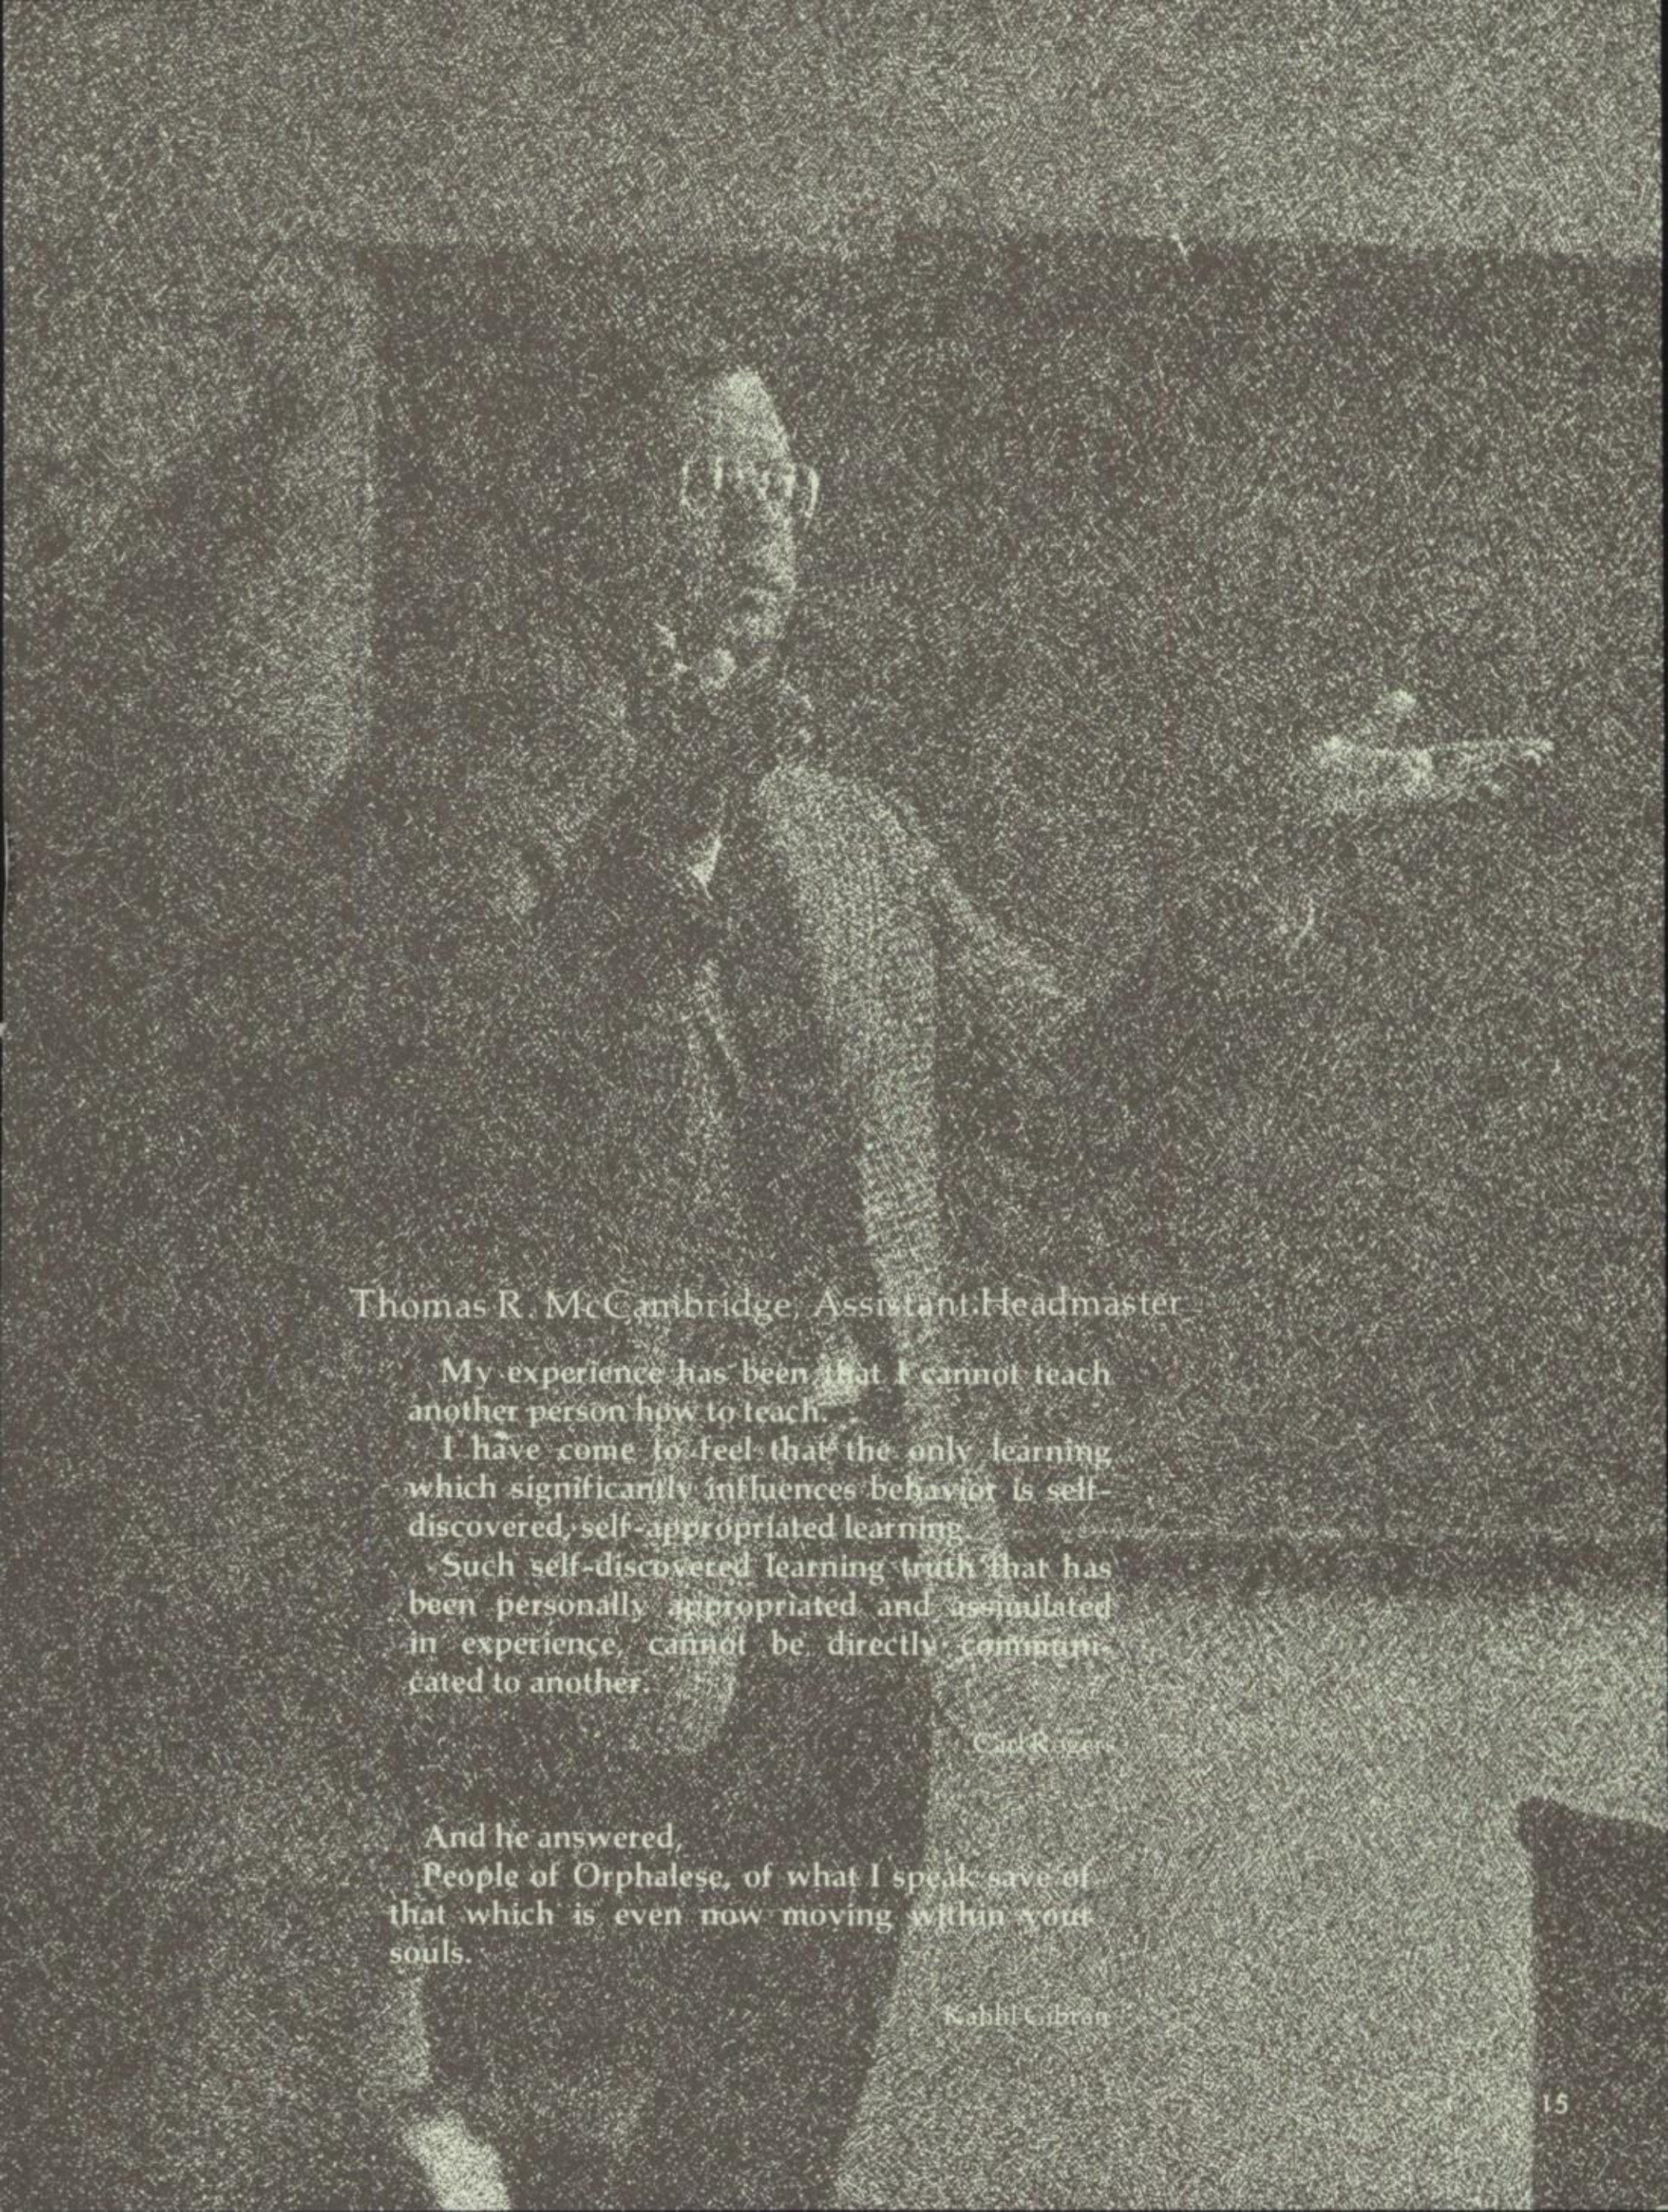


Nathan O. Reynolds, Headmaster

Humility is the beginning of discipline, and although there are many examples of this, these three especially are important to the reader: first, that he should hold no knowledge and no writing cheap; second, that he should not be ashamed to learn from anyone; third, that when he himself will have attained knowledge, he should not scorn others. This has deceived many, who wish to seem wise prematurely. Hence they swell up with self-importance, so that now they begin to pretend to be what they are not, and to be ashamed of what they are, and thus they withdraw further from wisdom, because they wish, not to be wise, but to be considered wise.

Hugh of St. Victor
12th Century





Thomas R. McCambridge, Assistant Headmaster

My experience has been that I cannot teach another person how to teach.

I have come to feel that the only learning which significantly influences behavior is self-discovered, self-appropriated learning.

Such self-discovered learning truth that has been personally appropriated and assimilated in experience, cannot be directly communicated to another.

Carl Rogers

And he answered,

People of Orphalese, of what I speak save of that which is even now moving within your souls.

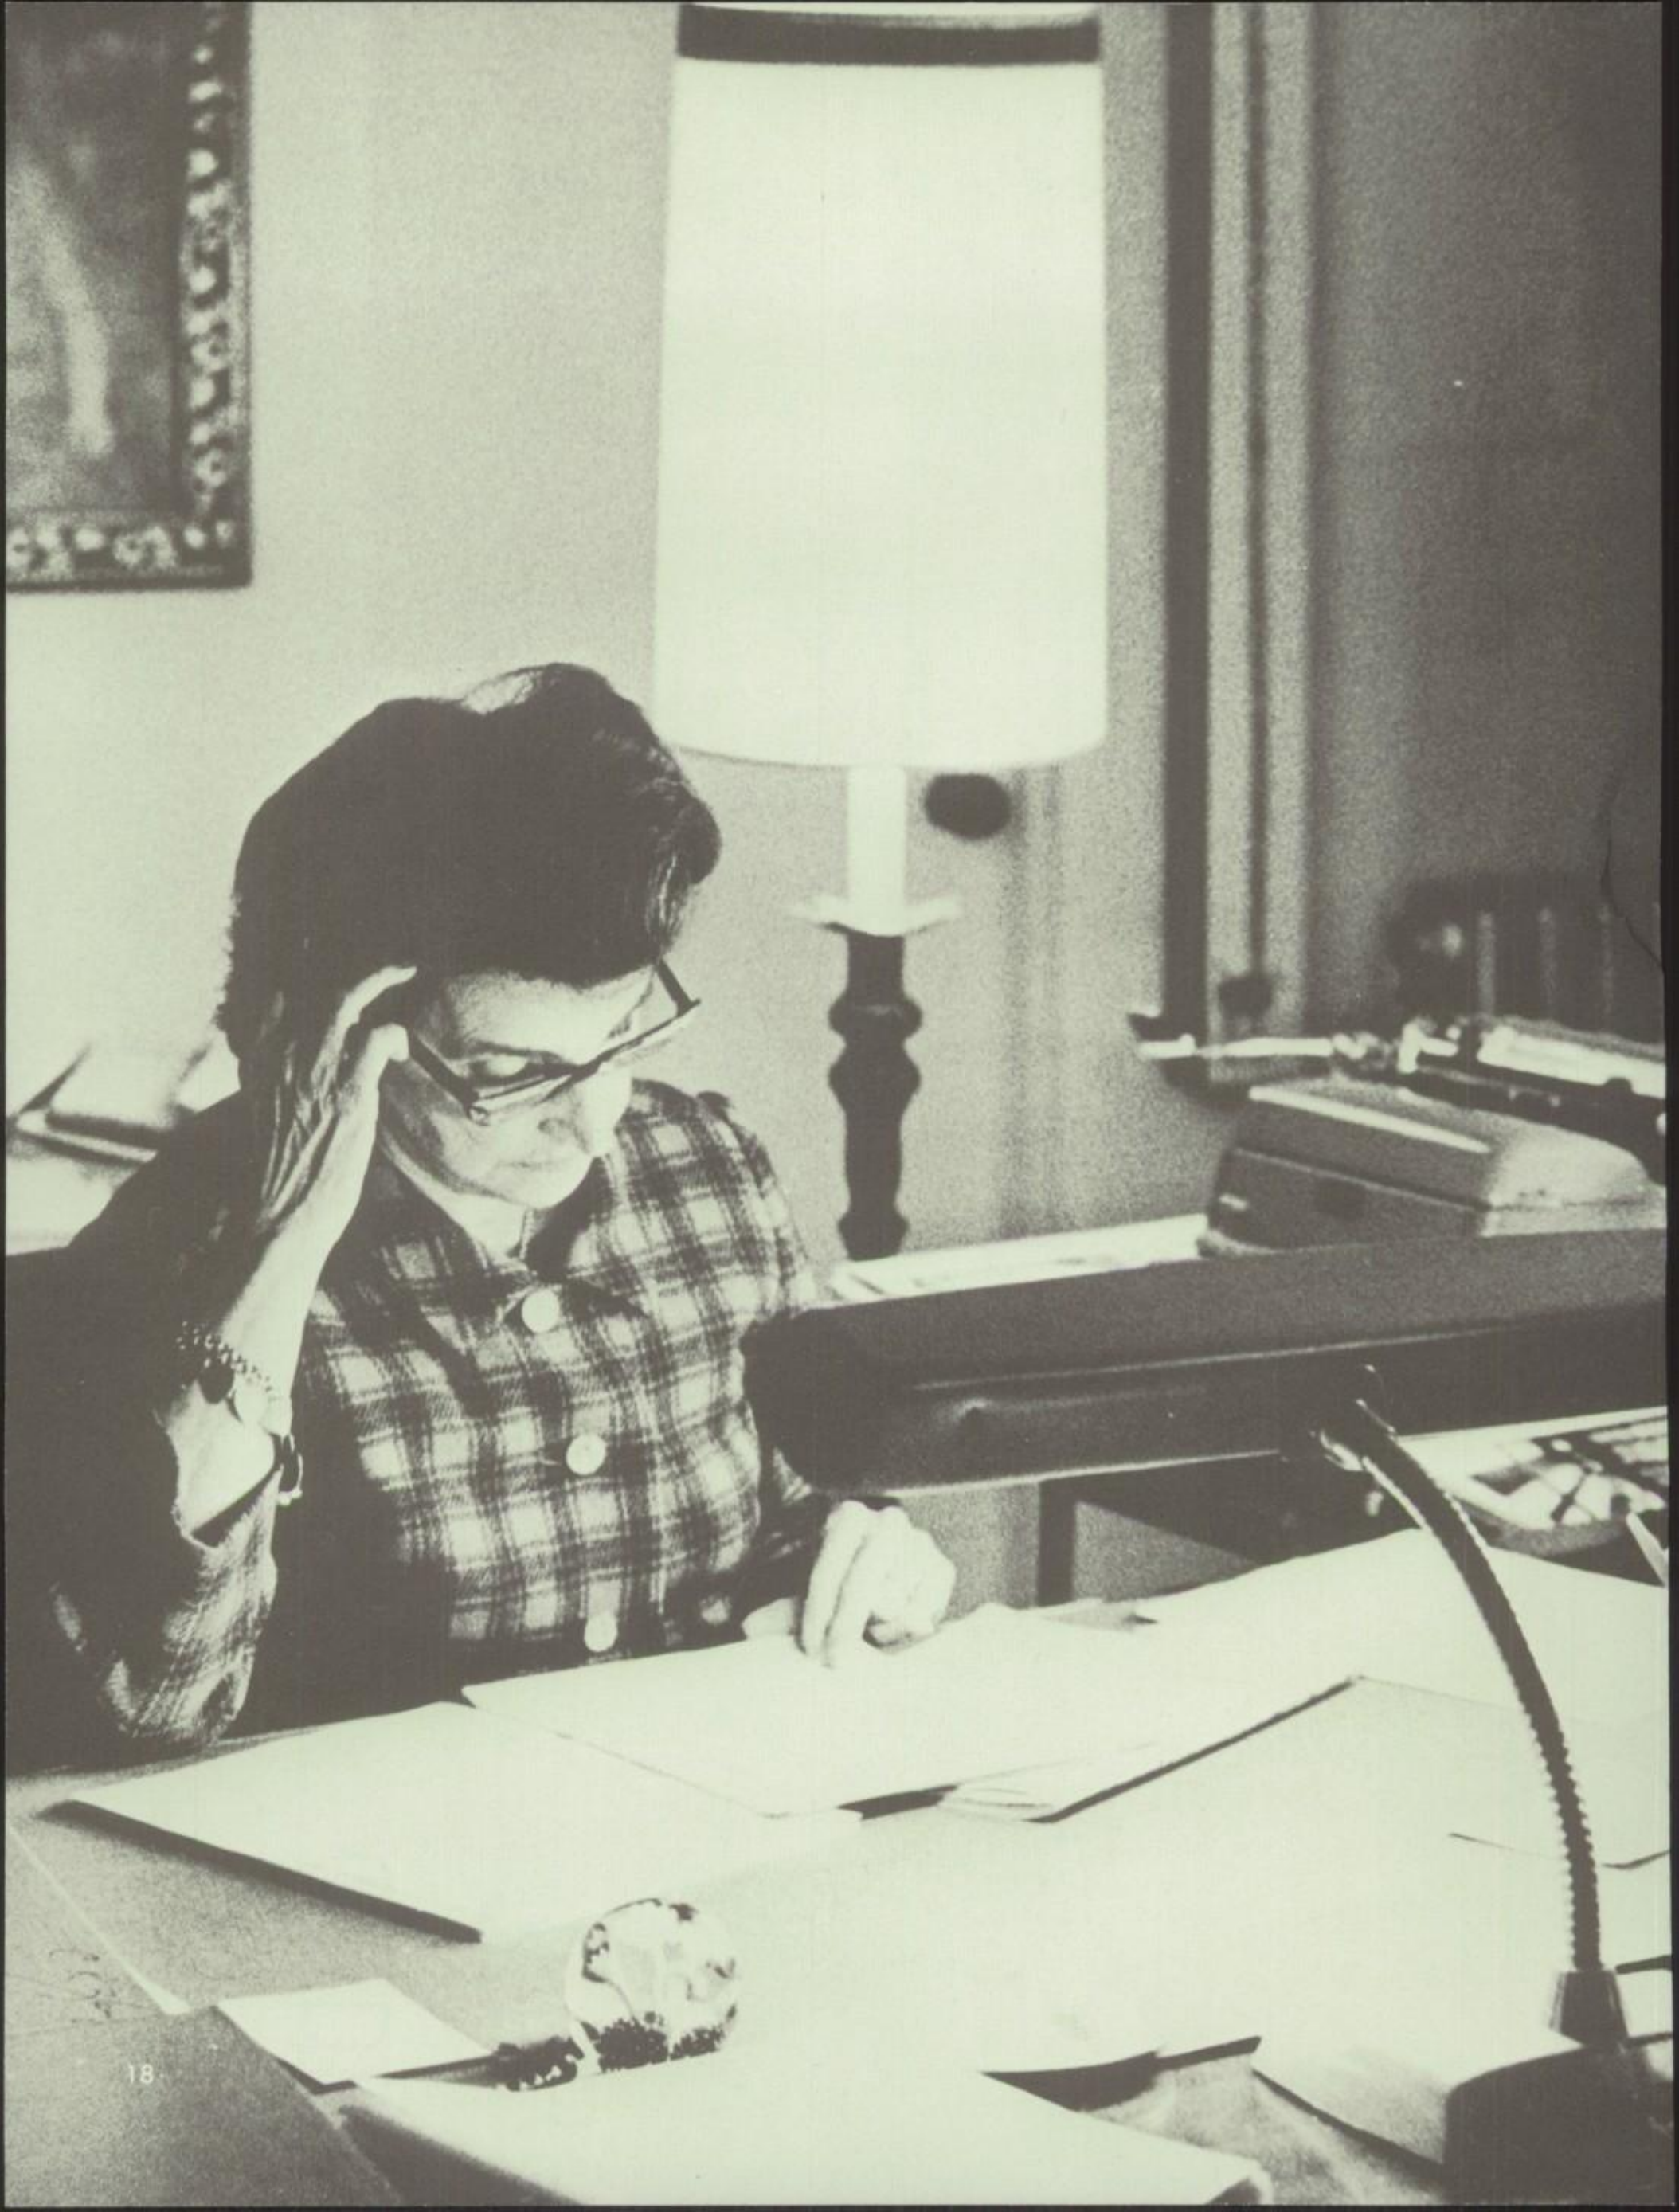
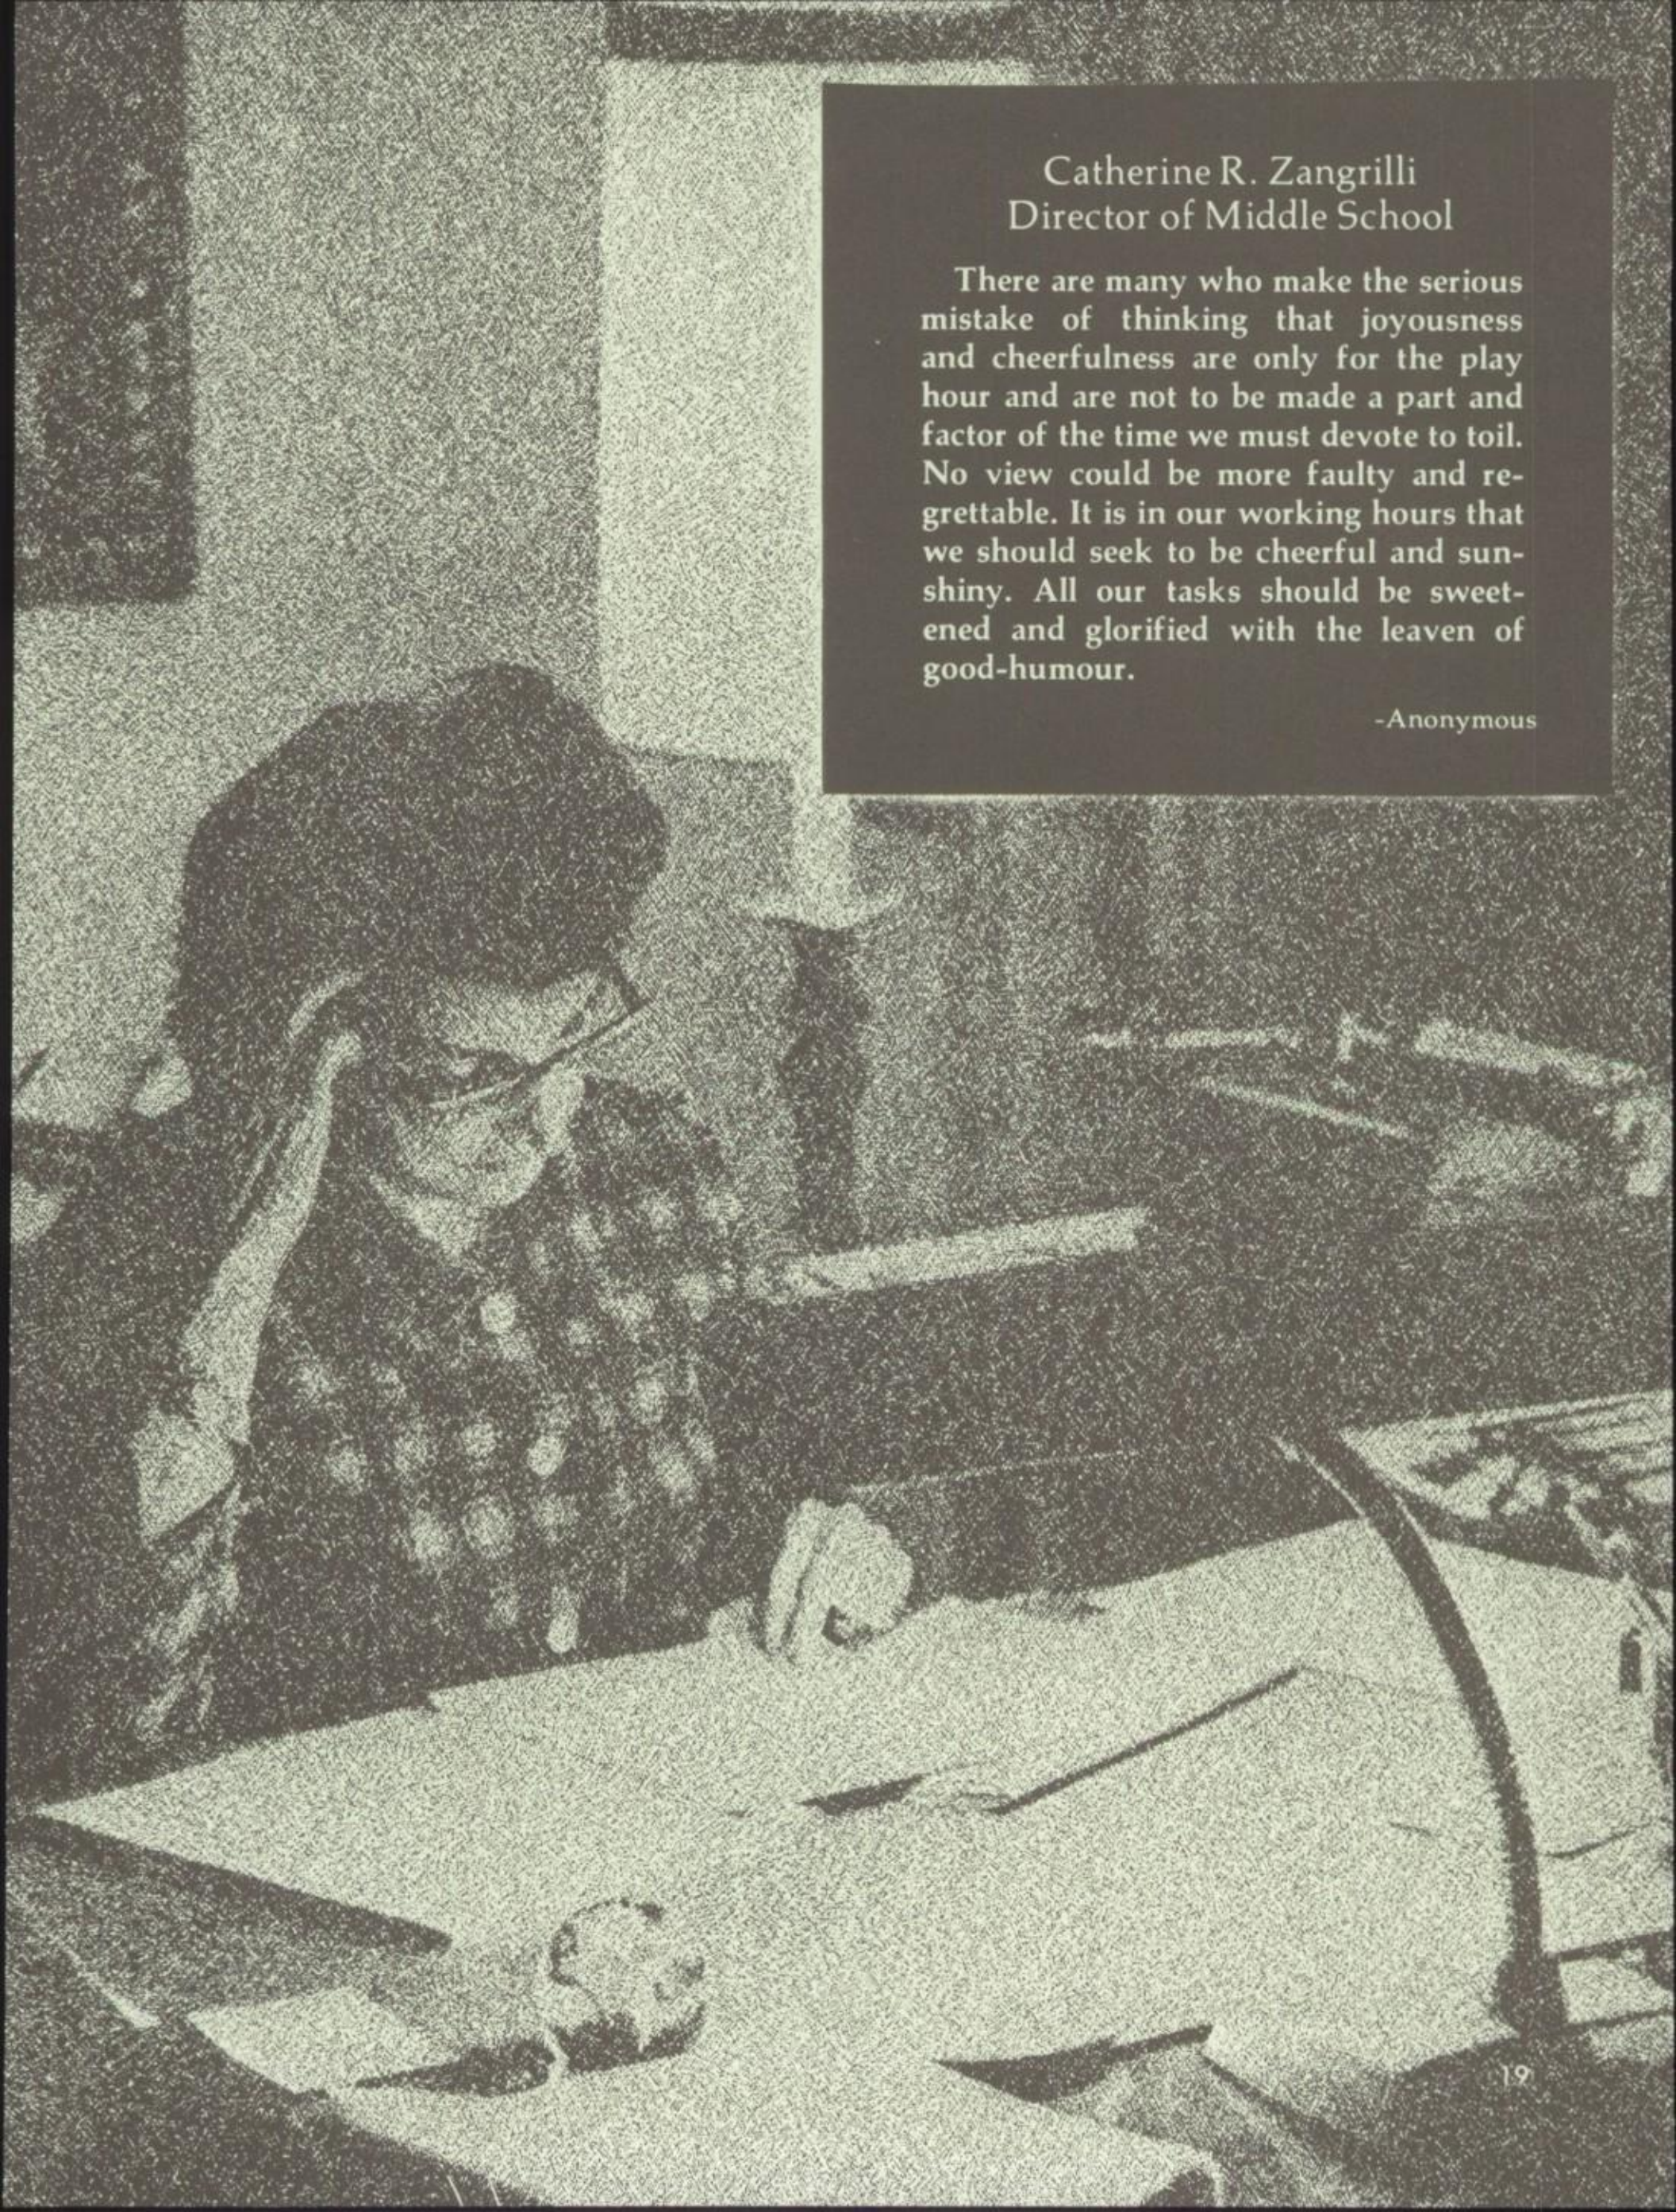
That you are here—that life exists, and identity; That the powerful play goes on, and you will contribute a verse.





Catherine R. Zangrilli
Director of Middle School

There are many who make the serious mistake of thinking that joyousness and cheerfulness are only for the play hour and are not to be made a part and factor of the time we must devote to toil. No view could be more faulty and regrettable. It is in our working hours that we should seek to be cheerful and sunshiny. All our tasks should be sweetened and glorified with the leaven of good-humour.

Don't let yourself get trapped in the confines of your mind—where logic and reason prevail and there's no room for dandelions. Occasionally, if not consistently, slip out (or sneak if you have to) and feel—beyond dimension and perspective into space of awareness. Always remember to bring a little chip of experience back to your head, and allow yourself the cognizance of its existence.

SENIORS

Flory Bramnick, Student Body President 1972-1973

"Westlake is a place that is made, molded, and changed by the people within it — changed with each succeeding year by the goals of that year's leaders.

The goal is always to teach us how to live — to achieve the security that comes with knowledge and understanding and the efficiency that comes with challenge and experience. All this is to show us the 'realness' of living which we sometimes tend to ignore while going to school, since school to us is sometimes a sheltered place."

Martha Helen Abrams

At times when I am called upon to express thanks or good wishes or to reminisce, I find it difficult to verbalize my feelings. This yearbook gives me the chance to say "I love you" in a rather sneaky way, as sometimes my nature will not permit me to say it face to face. This is to say thank you and I love you to: Patty and your appetite and your enthusiasm, Kristee — for your love and friendship through a lot of hard times, Lisa and her pal - Hectah, Judy and your beautiful photographs and Clark, Shelley and your special taco-lay and your "I'll weigh 105 tomorrow", Margot, for your being such an original, Gail and your little idget, Martha and your Billy Barty bag, Mrs. Nicol and her "offers you can't refuse", Mister Hosney on your weekend with Godard, Mrs. Coombs whose wonderfullness I cannot express in words. And, of course, to my God-Papa (you know who you are) without whom I might not have made it through all these years. Thank You. I love you. Take care,

Time let me play and be Golden in the mercy of his means."

A friend is someone who likes you . . .

Sometimes you don't know who are your friends.
Sometimes they are there all the time, but you walk right past them and don't notice that they like you in a special way.

And then you think you don't have any friends . . .

but everyone . . .
everyone in the whole world has at least ONE friend.

Where did you find yours?

Thanks to my my friends at Westlake for showing me that there are two sides to everything . . .

Dreams are nothing more than wishes and a wish is just a dream you wish to come true.

and helping my dreams come true . . .

From the moment of my birth
To the instant of my death,
There are patterns I must follow
Just as I must breathe each breath.

Time is tapping on my forehead
Hanging from the mirror, rattling the teacups
And I wonder . . . how long can I delay?

Can you imagine us years from today
Sharing a park bench quietly?
How terribly strange to be seventy.

Look around
The grass is high, the fields are ripe
It's the springtime of my life.

Hang onto your hopes my friend.
That's an easy thing to say but if your hopes should pass away
Simply pretend that you can build them again.

Seasons change with the scenery
Weaving time in a tapestry,
Won't you stop and remember me. . . .

them,
And proceed to fill my next fold of the future.

Listener up there! Here you. . . what have you to confide to me?
Look in my face while I snuff the sidle of evening,
Talk honestly, for no one else hears you, and Istay only a minute longer.
Do I contradict myself?
Very well then. . . I contradict myself;
I am large. . . I contain multitudes.
I concentrate toward them that are nigh. . . I wait on the door-slab.
Who has done his day's work and will soonest be through with his supper?
Who wishes to walk with me?

Will you speak before I am gone? Will you prove already too late?

I love you very much, Michelle

And to myself~
A few encouraging words:
Always remember, "You can,
if you think you can!"
Love, Me

And so, it is done ...

In the darkness . . . looking up at the grandeur of the universe . . . our world seems so very small. Yet it seems, more than ever,
one world.

We no longer hear the wind curling around us . . . we are one with the wind.
And all the trees in the forest,
in the world, are as one tree . . . to give us shade by day and shelter by night.
And all the streams are as one stream,
. . . reaching to the same sea . . .

And we are filled up and content with the day . . .
for the forest has spoken to us and the wild birds have taught us.
We have traveled with the sun and the wind . . .
. . . and now it is good to rest.

Lauren Gale Linde

Time it was,
And what a time it was
It was...
A time of innocence,
A time of confidences.
Long ago... It must be...
I have a photograph.
Preserve your memories;
They're all that's left you.

Sherrie Ellen Lipsky

Time passes slowly up here in the mountains.
We sat beside bridges and walked beside fountains,
Catch the wild fishes that float through the stream.
Time passes slowly, when you're lost in a dream.

Elizabeth Moles

I love you for who you are Not the one you feel you need to be.

If you love something very much
You must let it go free
And if it doesn't come back
It wasn't really yours
But if it does - love it forever

We need each other

If only we were old enough
Then they might leave us alone
So take my hand in your hand
Say it's great to be alive
No one's going to find us
No matter how hard they try

Karen Elizabeth Reed

God,
Grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, Courage to change the things I can and Wisdom to know the difference.

We crawl into the small crammed car,
Filled with exuberant chatter and happy sighs.
How I wish it could go on forever,
But I hear the mad bells ringing,
And I get out of bed and go to school.

Taffy J. Stern

My mind to me a kingdom is;
Such present joys therein I find
That it excels all other bliss
That earth affords or grows by kind.

Content to live, this is my stay;
I seek no more than may suffice;
I press to bear no haughty sway;
Look, what I lack my mind supplies.

I laugh not at another's loss
I grudge not at another's pain;
No worldly waves my mind can toss;
My state at one doth still remain.
I fear no foe, I fawn no friend;
I loathe not life, nor dread my end.

Some weith their pleasure by their lust,
Their wisdom by their rage of will
Their treasure is their only trust;
A cloaked craft their store of skill.
But all the pleasure that I find
Is to maintain a quiet mind.

My wealth is health and perfect ease;
My conscience clear my chief defense;
I neither seek by bribes to please,
Nor by deceit to breed offense.
Thus do I live; thus will I die;
Would all did so as well as I!

First follow Nature, and your judgement frame
By her just standard, which is still the same;

At once the source, and end, and test of Art.

MR. AND MRS. PHILIP J. WOLFSON

"To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully,
do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never. In a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common. This is to be my symphony."

William Henry Channing

THE ROSENSTEIN FAMILY

Dedicated to SUSAN WILLIAMS and her friends at Westlake

Little girls are the nicest things that happen to people. They are born with a little bit of angel-shine about them and though it wears thin sometimes, there is always enough left to lasso your heart — even when they are sitting in the mud, or crying temperamental tears, or parading up the street in mother's best clothes.

A little girl can be sweeter (and badder) oftener than anyone else in the world. She can jitter around, and stomp, and make funny noises that frazzle your nerves, yet just when you open your mouth, she stands there demure with that special look in her eyes. A girl is Innocence playing in the mud, Beauty standing on its head, and Motherhood dragging a doll by the foot.

Girls are available in five colors — black, white, red, yellow, or brown, yet Mother Nature always manages to select your favorite color when you place your order. They disprove the law of supply and demand — There are millions of little girls, but each is as precious as rubies.

God borrows from many creatures to make a little girl. He uses the song of a bird, the squeal of a pig, the stubbornness of a mule, the antics of a monkey, the spryness of a grasshopper, the curiosity of a cat, the speed of a gazelle, the slyness of a fox, the softness of a kitten, and to top it all off He adds the mysterious mind of a woman.

A little girl likes new shoes, party dresses, small animals, first grade, noise makers, the girl next door, dolls, make-believe, dancing lessons, ice cream, kitchens, coloring books, make-up, cans of water, going visiting, tea parties, and one boy. She doesn't care so much for visitors, boys in general, large dogs, hand-me-downs, straight chairs, vegetables, snow suits, or staying in the front yard. She is loudest when you are thinking, the prettiest when she has provoked you, the busiest at bedtime, the quietest when you want to show her off, and the most flirtatious when she absolutely must not get the best of you again.

Who else can cause you more grief, joy, irritation, satisfaction, embarrassment, and genuine delight than this combination of Eve, Salome, and Florence Nightingale? She can muss up your home, your hair, and your dignity — spend your money, your time, and your temper — then just when your patience is ready to crack, her sunshine peeks through and you've lost again.

Yes, she is a nerve-racking nuisance, just a noisy bundle of mischief. But when your dreams tumble down and the world is a mess — when it seems you are pretty much of a fool after all — she can make you a king when she climbs on your knee and whispers, "I love you best of all!"

CONGRATULATIONS TO CLASS OF 1973
from
Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Massey

He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgement: and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand. He shall see the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities.
